

They are wires stretched tightly across the bubble chamber.
If they appear curved in the pictures we know there is optical distortion in the lens system which must be corrected for.